

KACHIKACHI-YAMA

2

The man took the racoon home and ask his wife to make soup with it.

RACCOON: (Sweet voice)

- Please, let me help you. I promise I won't escape.

The old woman believed him and let him free.

(CHANGING TO NEXT CARD)

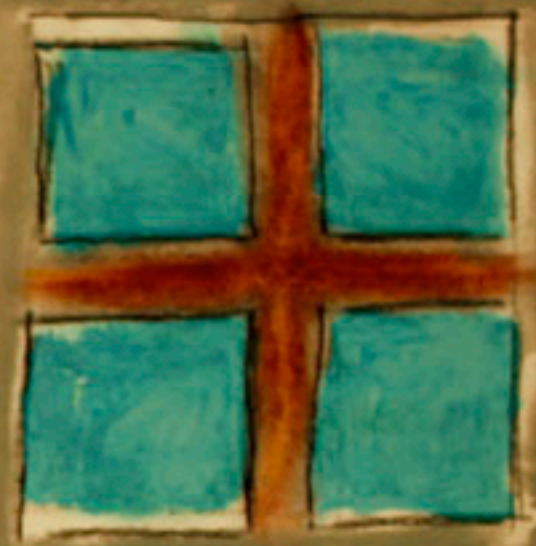

3

The racoon took the pestle and hit her on the head, killing her.
But the rabbit had seen everything.

When the man came back, he was very sad.

(CHANGING TO NEXT CARD)

4

Days later, the rabbit wait for the racoon.

RABBIT:

- Hi, racoon, will you help me to carry this hay ? I'll give you a rice ball after that.

The racoon put the hay on his back and the rabbit lit a fire on it.

RACCOON: (Crying in pain)

- Aaaaaaahh! Help me, help me!

(CHANGING TO NEXT CARD)

5

The rabbit prepared a smooth paste from red hot peppers.

RABBIT:

- Come here, racoon, I'm going to put some medicine on your back, so you'll feel better.

When the paste touched the back of the racoon, he fell on the ground on agony.

RACCOON: (Screaming and crying)

- Aaaaaghh! Help! Help!

(CHANGING TO NEXT CARD)

6

The rabbit took the racoon to the river.

RABBIT:

- Go for a row, the fresh water will help you.

But the boat was made of mud, when the boat got into the water, it broke in pieces.

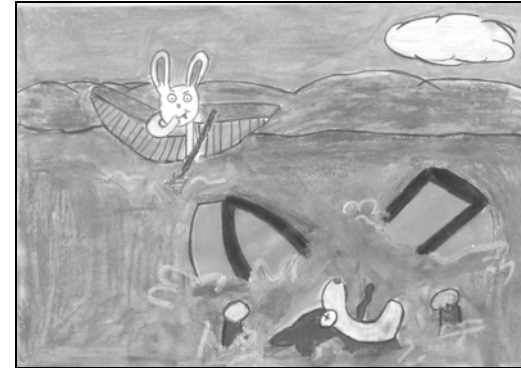

RACCOON:

- Help! Help! I can't swim!

RABBIT: (Very angry)

- This is your punishment for killing the old woman!

The racoon and the boat sunk to the bottom of the river.

KACHI-KACHI YAMA *

1

Once upon a time there was a couple of farmers. They had a rabbit, and they loved it as a son.

In the area lived a mean raccoon, that everyday ate the vegetables on the old man's fields.

One day, the farmer captured the raccoon.

(CHANGING TO NEXT CARD)

* <http://web-japan.org/kidsweb/folk/>